Spring 2018

INTRODUCING

Discover the fun in science, technology,
and engineering

Spring 2018

Hi Everyone,

In our very first book, Juggling for the Complete Klutz, we start by teaching you how to drop the ball: “Step 1: THE DROP. Throw all three bags into the air and, making no effort to catch any of them, let them all hit the ground. This is an example of THE DROP.”

You learn “the drop” because dropping the ball is not failure, it’s just part of the process on the path to success. We teach kids that a dropped ball is no big deal as long as you pick it up again. And with every attempt, you build creative confidence. You expand your thoughts and your problem-solving skills. You realize you are resilient.

The same is true of the Maker Movement happening across the country and, actually, the world right now. Maker culture emphasizes learning through doing. It’s about tinkering and creating, it’s about encouraging experimentation and exploration. It’s informal and motivated by fun and self-fulfillment. It doesn’t matter what you make or why you make. The important thing is just the process of making something.

At Klutz, we have always been makers. Our mission is to build creative confidence by teaching kids to explore, invent, create, and make.

That’s why I’m thrilled to share with you our new product line, Klutz Maker Lab. These kits introduce topics like robotics, circuitry, and kinetic machines, with hands-on projects that encourage exploration and experimentation. Each kit comes with everything you expect from Klutz: premium components, detailed step-by-step instructions, and a sense of humor to encourage you along the way. They teach through doing, with a focus on fun!

Go ahead and get started Making with Klutz!

Warmest,

Stacy Lellos,
SVP & General Manager

INTRODUCING

100%
KLUTZ
MAKER
LAB

A new line of STEM kits for kids dedicated to the Maker Movement

WHAT IS A MAKER? Makers are people who make things.
It's that simple.

Makers CREATE things that are artistic, solve problems, are unique, or are just plain fun.

Our new line of Maker Lab kits lets anyone be a maker! There are no special skills or snazzy certifications needed—just a desire to ask questions and the determination to build a project until it works. That's all part of learning to be a really good maker. Each kit comes with a detailed manual to encourage kids to explore the science behind the fun.

Once kids finish making Circuit Games and a Gumball Machine, encourage them to take what they've learned and venture out to make new things all on their own (with permission, of course). Kids will love being makers, so get ready to watch them play, and experiment!

STAY TUNED!

THE FOLKS AT KLUTZ MAKER LAB
