

Scholastic Inc., 557 Broadway, New York, NY 10012-3999, (212) 343-6100
www.scholastic.com

Some STINE-tingling Facts

- More than 300 million Goosebumps books sold and an additional 100 million books sold of Stine's THE NIGHTMARE ROOM, NIGHTMARE HOUR, and FEAR STREET series.
- Goosebumps books published by Scholastic have been translated into more than 32 languages.
- The 2003 Guinness Book of World Records named Stine the world's bestselling children's book series author of all time.
- Scholastic Media launched the Goosebumps television show in 1995—which topped the ratings charts and aired in over 60 countries.
- The Goosebumps television series currently airs on The Hub in the United States; it is available on DVD from Fox Home Entertainment and is available for download in iTunes.
- USA Today named R.L. Stine the #1 best-selling author in America for three consecutive years during the 1990s.
- Stine was included on People magazine's list of the "25 Most Intriguing People of 1995."
- "Goosebumps" or "R.L. Stine" has been the answer to five different questions on the game show Jeopardy between 1998 and 2006.
- @RL_Stine was listed as one of the "140 Best Twitter Feeds" by TIME.com. (March 2011)
- Stine was selected to accompany First Lady Laura Bush to Russia to promote children's reading in Moscow. (2003)
- Awards:
 - Three-time winner of the Nickelodeon Kid's Choice Award for Favorite Book
 - Three-time winner of the Disney Adventures Kids' Choice Award for Best Book (Mystery/Horror)
 - Winner of the Thriller Writers of America Silver Bullet Award (2007)
 - The recipient of the first Champion of Reading Award from the Free Public Library of Philadelphia (2002)
- R.L. Stine types so much that he needs to replace his keyboard every six months.